

The spirit of wanting to learn about technology starts when I was in secondary school where we learned how to manage and store data online. Learning about these stuffs makes me interested in database management and cloud computing and security. In addition to that, having lot of network and computer issues back in my island makes me interested in learning more about computer problems and how to solve the problems.

During my study here in RMIT, I expect to learn different kind of technology skills. Apart from technology skills and theories, I also expect to learn different kind of skills such as communication (writing & speaking), collaboration, etc that will help me in the future getting a job
